Trygve Lie Thinks Progress Promising

United Nations N.Y., June 28. Russia's explanation that its peace offer calls for battlefield talks with no political strings raised hopes at the United Nations today that a Korean cease-fire could be effected within a fortnight. Highly-placed observers here felt an armistice with a demilitarised zone and strict supervisory machinery might follow a cease-fire in short order but there was no predicting how long it would take to achieve a firm Korean peace. They said it might be anywhere from three months to three years or to infinity.

The United Nations Secretary-General, Mr. Trygve Lie, gave unqualified support to Russia's "clarified" cease-fire proposal in a statement tonight in response to questions about his opinion on developments in the past 24 hours.

COMMENT OF THE DAY

Britain's Wages Problem

THE British Government has been L confronted with ominous signs during past weeks of the determination of workers to insist on new wage claims. Already a number of unions have passed resolutions for higher wages and the Socialist government will not find it very easy to resist these growing demands from the rank and file. There was an almost complete round of wage increases in the six months from April to November last year. In that period some 9,650,000 of the workers covered by the Ministry of Labour's figures for changes in wage rates obtained increases to a total of some £3,600,000 a week, the equivalent of £186 million a year. To those must be added large sections not included in the returns, such as civil servants, local government officers and teachers. The weekly increase in the first four months of this year was six times as great as in the corresponding period last year. When the dam of wage restraint broke at the end of last summer the index of wage rates had gone up by only four points in two years, but since then it has advanced by eight points. The dam broke because the workers feit that wage increases were failing to keep pace with increases in the cost of living. While the workers have been getting their eight points increase, the index of retail prices has gone up another seven points and the index of food prices by nine points. The workers naturally complain they are no better off than before they obtained their increases. The situation seems to indicate a vain pursuit of prices by wages. Very naturally trade union leaders view the prospect uneasily. The TUC General Council has failed to produce any agreed policy of its own and is divided in its view on the policy adopted by the Government. There is an influential minority which is critical on the grounds that not enough has been done to control price increases. They suggest that the Government by allowing increases in world prices to sprend throughout Britain's economy without compensatory measures, withto maintain a balance if profits, prices as to offer fair treatment for the workers without damaging the nation's out the reintroduction of controls and rationing of scarce materials, and with fixed limits on subsidies and social services, is abandoning the policy of "fair shares" of which so much has been heard. On the other side, it is argued the Government could have pursued a policy of stabilisation only at prohibitive cost, and that the one possible course was to drift with the rush of high prices following the Korean crisis, hoping to regain control later. Exponents of this view have been satisfied that the Government adopted the right course with profits in taking a still larger share of those which are distributed. Whether or not it would have been possible to exercise. more effective controls over an economy subjected to such an assault, the trade union leaders themselves are in disagreement. It might be possible and wages are controlled, but it clearly cannot be done, as some trade unionists seem to hope, by controlling profits and prices and leaving wages free. Every tentative suggestion for a national wage policy which would be something more than a vague appeal for restraint has been firmly rejected by the TUC. It is a natural consequence of this attitude that wage rates in Britain are now pursuing prices, with the likelihood that while some sections of the wage. earners prosper, many others have to suffer. Eventually it will be necessary for the TUC to prrive at an agreed policy that can be applied in such a way

'Decartelised' New Steel Companies West Germany

Frankfurt, June 28. Allied officials gave the go-ahead signal today for the establishment of the first new "decartelised" German steel companies. High American officials said the first group of companies would be set up within a matter of weeks.

The move came after six years of Allied planning to broak up the powerful heavy industry trusts of the Ruhr and 13 months after the three Western occupation powers laid down the general lines of the breakup in their now-famous "Law 27."

Younger days

THERE was an idealistic aspect I in his thought, especially in his younger days. He could not avoid concerning himself with moral and ethical notions; and when he tried to escape them by using the terminology of economic materialism, he was thrown into contradictions which undermine his theories from the start. The seeds of the failure of Marxism, we can now see, are to be found in Marxism itself. The second main source of error, and of ultimate failure, is in the famous conception of "class struggie." This struggle, which Marx declared to be necessary and inevitable, would lead, he said, to "the ruln of the contending classes." The materialistic side of Marx preached general ruln. The irrespressibly idealistic side of him hoped, rather vaguely, that after the

THE approach of the Ohio State Tournament reminds me a hand that the late Louis Watson played in this same annual tournament many years ago. North's, bid of two 'no-trump would not be made by an expert in modern competition. In 1930, when this hand was played, such bids-with one suit wide open-were quite common. The defenders quickly ratifed of three heart tricks against Watson's final contract of four spades. West won the third round of hearts and led a club, after which it was up to Watson to take the rest of the

Drobny

Wimbledon, June 28. Britain's No. 1 player, Tony Mottram, today brought off the second big surprise of the 1951 All-England Championships, beating Jaroslav Drobny, exiled Czech, by 5-7, 6-4, 2-6, 7-5, 8-8. Mottrum, unseeded, played the best tennis of his life to heat the glant left-hander, seeded No. 2, and enters the last 16. Drobny was the favourite to win the title with the bookmakers after his victory in the recent French Championships. Starved of a major victory for a home player for so long, the 31-year-old Briton was cheered to the echo by the wildly excited crowd as he left the court.

Mottram now meets, in the effectively as their British op-fourth round, the big Swede, ponents, Hedley Baxter and Lempri Bergelin, who today Poddy Roberts, in another first beat the Italian, Gianni Cucelli, 5-7. 6-2, 0-4, 0-3.

Yesterday's hero, the Ameri- third set which they levelled at can Junior Champion, Hamilton Richardson, reached the last 16 with a victory over the Yugoslav No. 4. Vladimir Petrovic, by 2-6, 6-0, 6-2, 7-5.

Richardson next meets the Armando "find", Vleira, who today eliminated the Swede, Stefan Stockenberg.

Another Swede went out with the defeat of Bengt Axelsson, but he did well to take a set from the South African, Eric Sturgess, who won 4-6, 6-0, 6-4, 6-2. If Sturgess wins his next round match as anticipated he meets the winner of the Richardson-Vieira duel. .

... AND OUT GOES MULLOY A third sectled player fell by the wayside when Gardner Mulloy, ranked No 4 in America, was beaten by the up coming young Italian, Fausto Cardini. The Italian, who won by 7-5, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4 ngainst the 36-year-old American, now has to face Frank Sedgman, Australian No. 1 seed.

Sedgman once again dropped saveral games in winning. He had to fight hard to beat Straight Clark of the United States 8-6, 11-9, 6-3.

Another upset was almost brought about by Kurt Nellsen, the Danish Champion, who was finally beaten 6-4, 1-0, 6-3, 6-6-4 by Dick Savitt, America's No 6, who won the Australian singles title this year. It was a sterling performance by Neilsen who actunlly led 4-3 in the final set. Herble Flam, the American 2 player, had little

The axiom They Never Come Back is the oldest in the fight game and it is one that has stood against the passage of time. It is a matter of historical fact that no world champion ever has come back.....

Batters LaMotta

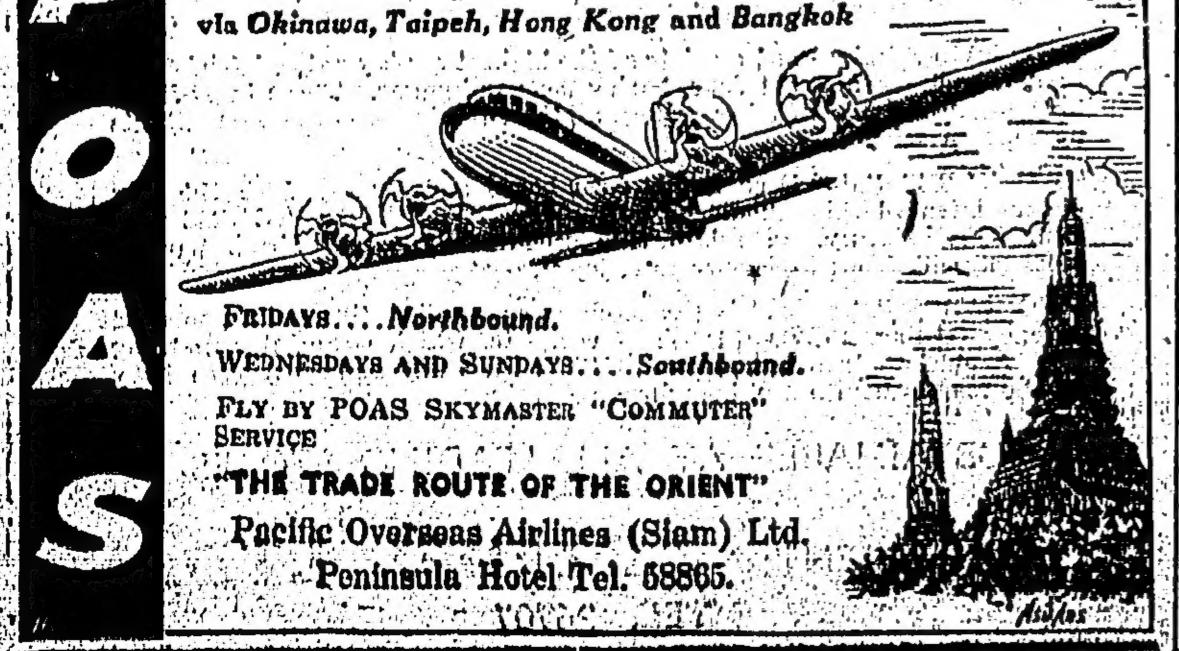

New York, June 27. Irish Bob Murphy slashed Jake LaMotta's face into a bloody pulp tonight to stop: the ex-middleweight champion on a technical knockout after seven rounds of head-to-head battering.

Dr. Vincent Nardiello stopped the blood-letting with Jake spouting red from slashes round both eyes and mouth.

although he had fought in more than one war and had been a soldier for Egypt and Spain as well as Britain. It was a strange story. It began when he met Anna during the South African War. He was convalescing from a head wound. They fell in love, but Anna remained a mystery. She had no parents and she had been educated, in a convent at Copenhagen, sho sald, That She wrote to Charlie twice when he resumed service, but returned marked "Not known."

One day Charlie was told that three Boers were known to be frequenting a lonely farmhouse area. 'He lay in walt with a couple of men. At dawn three figures crept out of the farmhouse. Charlie challenged, they bolted. He and his men fired and the three fell.

Charlie went up to his own victim and found-Anna. She was wearing riding breeches. an ammunition belt and a Mauser pistol, and a Balaclava helmet containing a scrap of tartan ribbon which he had given her. Papers in her saddle wallets explained the reason for her secrecy.

Charlie recovered the copper pullet, which was embedded in the rolled blanket in front of Anna's saddle. When Charile died this week at his home in Netherfield.

Exhaustion Of Rice Supplies Forecast

Washington, June 28. The Agriculture Department said today that the world rice supplies are likely to be exhausted before new crops come in late 1951-1952.

The Department spid the prediction was based on a first-hand survey of the rice picture in Souths east Asia. The big reason is the disrupting influence of the Korean war. Another reason, however, in that some large rice-deficit countries have increased their buying power because of the high prices they have been setting for rubber, tin, copra and other products. Japan is also becoming a large bidder for world rice supplies and India's requirements have increased, the Department sald. - United

Weevil Killer

Demonstrated

Henderson, Texas, June 28. Farmers in this area are praising the "dream" invention of a 50-year-old Rusk County, Texas, cotton raiser that exterminates boll weevils.

E. E. Perry, tenant farmer with 11 children, said he clearly saw his invention in a dream last summer after he had unsuccessfully fought the cotton-killing weevils in his 30-acre patch.

He demonstrated the "dream" contraption today in a field of lush cotton near here. Some 50 scaptical farmers and civic leaders witnessed the test. the demonstration; Perry drove the tractor, with a machine attached, up and down eight rows of cotton on a farm three miles east of Henderson.

Perry's complicated - looking machine works the way. A tank' filled with the inventor's own special insecticide is on the hood of the tractor. This fluid flows through twin "tunnels" past hot exhaust pipes of the tractor. The heat from the exhaust pipes vaporises the fluid and it is then sprayed through nozzles into metal hoods open at the front on each side of the tractor. Each hood has metal springs which act as agitators to gently shake dead larvae insects and eggs loose from plants and into metal trays underneath.

After the test, Perry proudly called for the farmers present to come and take a look. Several pulled a plate from under the March (1952) 2411/4 tractor and it was filled with May 2.41% dead weevils, larvae eggs and other insects.-United Press.

Markets Peace Talk

New York, June 28: The talk of peace in Korea has apparently had a little influence on the raw silk markell either in the United States or Japan, an authoritative trade paper said today. It said: "The market continued to move within fairly limits. Japanese trade and consuming industries here are adopting a waiting attitude for the time being.

"The buying of raw silk by American manufacturers and new purchases in Japan by importers picked up markedly in the previous two around $4.50 a pound. Nearby delivery was reported difficult to obtain.

."Importers' : purchases in Japan in the past two weeks probably amounted to 2,500 to 3,000 bales, one informed source estimated. These purchases for forward shipment were made in a range from around $4 to 4.25 a pound. LEGENDARY But it may not come until after de Valera's day. To his followers, de Valera, the son of a Spanish father and an Irish mother, is almost a legendary figure now. They greet his appearance at political rallies with shouts of "Up Dev." His opponents respect him even if they don't love him. Among themselves they refer to him as the "long fellow." De Valera began his political career squinting down a rifle barrel in the Easter Week uprising of 1916, the few surviving leaders of the Irish forces of that period, he symbolises in Irlsh minds much of the whole period of struggle-against - British-rule. --De Valera's personality is as complex as the times through which he has lived. Friends point out that he is at once a rebel and a scholar, a practical politician and an idealist. He fights hard for social reforms and yet most observers classify him as a Conservative. Much of his political philosophy can be summed up in this campaign statement of his: "I will soek the establishment of a social order that will give Irish men and women a chance to live as God designed human beings should live."

De Valera's 'realism is exhibited by his attitude to a long-standing Irish political question. .The 26 counties making up the Independent Republic want all of the Island unified under one government.
